Christopher Nolan, a first-grade student at Ledgeview Elementary School in Summit County, demonstrates a caring and responsible attitude every day. Christopher will go out of his way to help anyone in need. He shows his kindness and generosity by helping and teaching his classmates who may not understand an assignment, or who may need help getting ready to go home. He will help them tie their shoes, zip up their jackets and other self-assistant needs, while teaching them the skills to be come self-sufficient. Christopher helps keep the classroom organized by straightening the tables and sorting materials, all without being asked. He earns outstanding grades in all subject areas and is well respected by the entire class.

Thank you, Christopher, for being such a positive role model.
